Speaker Bios
Saturday, October 19, 2013

Access to Higher Education and the Role of Online Education
Robertson Hall, Dodds Auditorium

Moderator:
Cecilia Rouse
Dean, Woodrow Wilson School
Lawrence and Shirley Katzman and Lewis and Anna Ernst Professor in the Economics of Education
Professor of Economics and Public Affairs, Woodrow Wilson School

Cecilia Elena Rouse is the Dean of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs and the Lawrence and Shirley Katzman and Lewis and Anna Ernst Professor in the Economics of Education. She is the founding director of the Princeton University Education Research Section, a member of the National Academy of Education and a research associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research. She has served as an editor of the Journal of Labor Economics and is currently a senior editor of The Future of Children. In 1998-99 she served a year in the White House at the National Economic Council and from 2009-2011 served as a member of the President’s Council of Economic Advisers. She is a member of the board of directors of MDRC, a Director of the T. Rowe Price Equity Mutual Funds and an Advisory Board Member of the T. Rowe Price Fixed Income Mutual Funds. She received her B.A. in economics from Harvard University in 1986 and a Ph.D. in economics from Harvard University in 1992.

Panelists:
Lisa Barrow *99, Senior Economist, Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago

Lisa Barrow is a Senior Economist at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and Affiliated Researcher at the University of Chicago Consortium on Chicago School Research. Her research focuses on a variety of education issues, including the effect on elementary school students of closing persistently failing schools, a randomized evaluation of computer-aided algebra instruction in large urban school districts, and evaluations of performance-based scholarship impacts on academic outcomes and student time use at the college level. She is co-editor of the spring 2013 Future of Children volume, Postsecondary Education in the United States. Dr. Barrow lives in Chicago, is married, and has two sons, ages 6 and 8. She runs to stay fit enough to keep up with the boys and carves out time in the summer to play an average of 9 holes of golf per week in a women’s league. She received a B.A. in economics from Carleton College and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in economics from Princeton University.
Janet L. Holmgren *74
Senior Vice President, UniversityNow, and President Emerita, Mills College

Janet L. Holmgren serves as the Senior Vice President for Strategic Advancement for a socially responsible higher educational technology company, UniversityNow (UNOW) based in San Francisco. She is President Emerita of Mills College, having stepped down in 2011 after a successful twenty year presidency. Prior to moving to California to lead Mills, she served as Vice Provost of Princeton and as a Senior Administrator at UMCP. A faculty member and administrator in higher education since completing her Ph.D., she is a nationally recognized advocate for access to higher education and for the education and advancement of women. Her board memberships have included the American Council on Education, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, and Princeton University. She is currently on the Boards of Patten University, the Roslyn Franklin Society, the International Museum of Women, and the Children's Hospital and Research Center in Oakland.

James B. Jacobs *77
President, Macomb Community College

James Jacobs assumed the presidency of Macomb Community College on July 1, 2008. Prior to his appointment, he concurrently served as director for the Center for Workforce Development and Policy at the college, and as associate director, Community College Research Center (CCRC), Teachers College, Columbia University. Jacobs is currently serving on the Governor’s Talent Investment Board, which advises Michigan’s governor on job creation, and talent development and retention. He is widely known for the Macomb County Economic Forecast, presented annually for more than 30 years for the coalition of county’s chambers of commerce. Jacobs serves on a number of local boards, including the Center for Automotive Research, Metropolitan Affairs Council and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Ann Kirschner *78
University Dean, Macaulay Honors College, City University of New York (CUNY)

Ann Kirschner is University Dean of Macaulay Honors College of The City University of New York. Since its creation in 2001, Macaulay has become a leader in public higher education; the College’s young alumni include Rhodes Scholars as well as rapidly advancing scientists, scholars, and artists. Dr. Kirschner’s career also spans an unusual range of experiences and organizations. As an entrepreneur, her start-up businesses include PRIMETIME 24, NFL.COM and FATHOM, a for-profit online learning venture in partnership with Columbia University. As a writer and speaker, her topics range from history to education policy and strategy, careers, and digital media. She is the author of Sala’s Gift and her latest book, Lady at the OK Corral is the biography of Josephine Marcus Earp.

Lashawn Richburg-Hayes *00
Director, MDRC

Lashawn Richburg-Hayes is the director of MDRC’s work in higher education, which is focused on finding ways to increase academic achievement and persistence among low-income students attending community colleges and less selective four-year universities. Richburg-Hayes is a quantitative methods expert and principal researcher of the national Performance-Based Scholarship Demonstration, which evaluates the effectiveness of incentive programs to increase retention and persistence in higher education. She is also the project director and co-principal investigator of the Behavioral Inventions to Advance Self-Sufficiency project sponsored by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, which studies the applications of principles behavioral economics to social policy programs. Richburg-Hayes earned a B.S. degree from the Industrial and Labor Relations School of Cornell University. She received her Ph.D. in economics from Princeton University.
Alumni Stories: Making a Difference
McCosh Hall, Room 28

Moderator:
Stanley Katz
Lecturer with the rank of Professor in Public and International Affairs, Woodrow Wilson School

Stanley Katz is President Emeritus of the American Council of Learned Societies. His recent research focuses upon recent developments in American philanthropy, the relationship of civil society and constitutionalism to democracy, and upon the relationship of the United States to the international human rights regime. Formerly Class of 1921 Bicentennial Professor of the History of American Law and Liberty at Princeton University, Katz is a specialist on American legal and constitutional history, and on philanthropy and non-profit institutions. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Newberry Library, the Center for Jewish History and numerous other institutions. He also currently serves as Chair of the American Council of Learned Societies/Social Science Research Council Working Group on Cuba. He received the annual Fellows Award from Phi Beta Kappa in 2010 and the National Humanities Medal (awarded by Pres. Obama) in 2011. He has honorary degrees from several universities.

Panelists:
Nusrat Choudhury *06
Staff Attorney, National Security Project, American Civil Liberties Union

Nusrat Choudhury is a Staff Attorney in the ACLU's National Security Project. She litigates cases challenging national security policies that violate civil rights and civil liberties, including the No-Fly List and the role of U.S. officials in the illegal detention, rendition, and coercive interrogation of a U.S. citizen abroad. Ms. Choudhury combats racial profiling and other discrimination against racial, ethnic, and religious minorities including through the ACLU's "Mapping the FBI" campaign, which challenges abuse of authority resulting from expanded FBI surveillance. Ms. Choudhury received her B.A. from Columbia University, her M.P.A. from Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, and her J.D. from Yale Law School. Ms. Choudhury clerked for Judge Barrington D. Parker (2d Cir) and Judge Denise Cote (SDNY), and is a co-director of Young Professionals for CARE. She is also a recipient of the Paul and Daisy Soros Fellowships for New Americans.

Robert Curvin *75
Former Vice President, Ford Foundation, and Former President, Greentree Foundation

Bob Curvin began his academic career at City University, Brooklyn Campus, following his studies in Politics here at Princeton. After teaching for four years at Brooklyn College, Bob joined the Editorial board of The New York Times, where he wrote on a wide range of political and social policy issues. In 1984 he returned to academe, and became the dean of the Graduate School of Management and Urban Policy at the New School. Following his five year term at the New School, he joined the staff of the Ford Foundation and first served as director of the organizations urban poverty programs, and the vice-president for communications. Following his retirement from the Ford Foundation, he served as president of the Greentree Foundation in New York, a charity established by the Whitney family. Bob has a long list of nonprofit and civic engagements, both in Newark and nationally.
Lawrence Goldman *69 *76
President and Chief Executive Officer, Theater Square Development Company

Lawrence P. Goldman is presently (since June of 2011) the President and Chief Executive Officer of the Theater Square Development Company, a subsidiary of The New Jersey Performing Arts Center. Goldman became the first President of the New Jersey Performing Arts Center (NJPAC) in June of 1989. In 1993, he also became Chief Executive Officer. He stepped down after 22 years in June of 2011. Prior to joining NJPAC, Goldman was, from 1980-1989, Director of Real Estate Planning and Development and then Vice President of Carnegie Hall where he was responsible for organizing the restoration, renovation, and expansion of Carnegie Hall and the development of a 60-story tower adjacent to Carnegie Hall. In 1987, he was selected a Crain’s All-Star by Crain’s New York Business for his work at Carnegie Hall.

During the 1970's, he was Executive Assistant to the President of the New York State Urban Development Corporation and Executive Vice President of the Roosevelt Island Development Corporation in New York City. Prior to that, he held administrative and faculty positions at the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University. Goldman holds M.P.A. and Ph.D. degrees in Public Affairs from the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University and an A.B. from Colgate University, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. In February 2008, he was awarded the James Madison Medal by Princeton University. He currently serves on the Board of Directors for Teach for America (New Jersey), The Newark Alliance, Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, and The Institute for Ethical Leadership at Rutgers University.

Katherine Marshall *69
Senior Fellow and Visiting Professor, Berkley Center for Religion, Peace & World Affairs, and Executive Director, World Faiths Development Dialogue

Katherine Marshall has worked for four decades in international development focusing on the world’s poorest countries. She is a senior fellow at Georgetown’s Berkley Center for Religion, Peace and World Affairs and Visiting Professor in the School of Foreign Service, where she enjoys the gift of working with the next generation. She spent 35 years at the World Bank, in many assignments focused on Africa, Latin America, and East Asia. From 2000 – 2006, she was counselor to the Bank’s president on ethics, values, and faith in development. She serves on two international prize committees, the Opus Prize Foundation and the Niwano Peace Prize Foundation, and chairs the board of the World Bank Community Connections Fund. She serves on several other boards including AVINA Americas, a foundation working across Latin America, and the Washington National Cathedral Foundation. She co-moderates the Fes Forum, part of the world renowned Fes Festival of Global Sacred Music.
Architectural Perspectives: Across the Generations

Architecture Building, Betts Auditorium

Moderator:
Paul Lewis *92
Associate Professor of Architecture

Paul Lewis is a Principal at LTL Architects and is an Associate Professor at Princeton’s School of Architecture, focusing on integrated design and inventing new relationships between performance and form. His firm has completed academic and institutional projects throughout the United States, receiving a 2007 National Design Award and multiple AIA design awards. Their recent built work includes Arthouse, a contemporary art center in Austin, Texas; a residence hall for the deaf at Gallaudet University; and an administrative campus for the Claremont University Consortium. LTL’s work has been exhibited around the world, including the Venice Biennale, and their drawings are part of the permanent collections at MoMA, SFMoMA, and Carnegie Museum of Art. Their designs responding to global sea change were exhibited in Rising Currents at MoMA, and this year they worked with the NYC Department of Parks to redesign and rebuild Steeplechase Pier at Coney Island in the aftermath of Sandy.

Panelists:

Eva Franch Gilabert *07
Architect, MS-50

Franch is an architect, founder in 2003 of OOAA and currently the Chief Curator and Executive Director of Storefront for Art and Architecture in New York. Prior to joining SFAA in 2010, Franch was an artist in residence at Schloss Solitude and directed the Masters Thesis studio at Rice University SOA while practicing and building in Catalonia. She studied at TU Delft and earned an M. Arch from ETSAB-UPC, and an M. Arch. II from Princeton University. At Storefront, her most recent projects include a new publication Series, exhibitions such Being, No Shame: Storefront for Sale or POP: Protocols, Obsessions, Positions, the launching of the Storefront International Series, the launching of the World Wide Storefront, commissioning major projects such as the Speechbuster or the Competition of Competitions. More recently she has been appointed by the State Department together with a team as the commissioner and curator for the 2014 US Pavilion at the Venice Architecture Biennale.

J. Robert Hillier ’59 *61
Visiting Lecturer, School of Architecture

After interning with Labatut on the Stuart School in Princeton, the only building ‘Labby’ ever built, Bob Hillier began his practice in 1966. Residences were first projects, but a quickly built, inexpensive dorm for Fairleigh Dickinson that won an AIA Design Award put Hillier on the collegiate map and won him the new campus for Bryant College. Collegiate work led to corporate training centers that led to over 80 corporate headquarters campuses. As the firm grew, over 40 years, its specialty practice groups won over 350 design awards. In 1998 Architectural Record named Hillier Architecture as one of the best managed firms in the U.S. In 2007, with over 500 on staff and offices in Princeton, six US cities, London and Dubai, Hillier merged with a Scottish firm to form the third largest architecture firm in the world. Post-merger, with his wife, Barbara *11, Bob formed a new design and development firm. Since 1993, Bob has taught Professional Practice at Princeton’s School of Architecture.
Jonathan D. Solomon *03
Associate Dean, School of Architecture, Syracuse University

Jonathan D. Solomon is Associate Dean at the School of Architecture at Syracuse University. His work explores public space and the contemporary city, through design projects such as Ooi Botos Gallery, a shophouse in a Hong Kong street market converted into a gallery for contemporary Chinese photographic art; research projects such as his 2004 book 13 Projects for the Sheridan Expressway, the 26th volume in the Pamphlet Architecture series; and curatorial projects such as 2010’s Workshopping in the US Pavilion at the Venice Architecture Biennale. His recent book, Cities Without Ground, is a guide to the complex three-dimensional urbanism of Hong Kong. Solomon has taught design at the City College of New York and, as a Banham Fellow, at the University at Buffalo, as well as the University of Hong Kong, where he led the Department of Architecture as Acting Head from 2009 to 2012. He is a licensed architect in the State of Illinois and Member of the American Institute of Architects.

Adam Yarinsky *87
Principal and Co-Founder, Architecture Research Office

Adam Yarinsky, FAIA is principal, with Stephen Cassell and Kim Yao, of Architecture Research Office. Founded in 1993, the New York City firm has earned a reputation for elegant, innovative and imaginative architecture born out of relentless exploration and engagement. The firm received the 2011 Cooper-Hewitt National Design Award for Architecture. Adam holds an undergraduate degree in Architecture from the University of Virginia and a Master of Architecture from Princeton University. He served as the Sanders Teaching Fellow and the Eliel Saarinen Professor at the University of Michigan, and as the Shure Professor at the University of Virginia. He also taught at Harvard, Princeton, Yale, and other universities. Adam has lectured widely throughout the United States and abroad. He has also written for A+U, Places Journal, 306090, and other publications. Adam is a member of the Board and executive committee for the Places Journal Foundation.

Hot Topics in Cybersecurity
Frist Campus Center, Room 302

Moderator:
Edward Felten
Professor of Computer Science and Public Affairs
Director, Center of Information Technology Policy
Director, Program in Information Technology and Society

Edward W. Felten is Professor of Computer Science and Public Affairs at Princeton, and the founding Director of Princeton’s Center for Information Technology Policy. In 2011-12 he served as the first Chief Technologist at the U.S. Federal Trade Commission. His research interests include computer security and privacy, especially relating to media and consumer products; and technology law and policy. He has published over eighty papers in the research literature, and two books. His research on topics such as web security, copyright and copy protection, and electronic voting has been covered extensively in the popular press. His weblog, at freedom-to-tinker.com, is widely read for its commentary on technology, law, and policy. He is a member of the National Academy of Engineering and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.
Panelists:

Matthew Blaze *93
Associate Professor of Computer and Information Science
Director, Distributed Systems Laboratory, University of Pennsylvania

Matt Blaze is Associate Professor of Computer and Information Science at the University of Pennsylvania. Matt’s research focuses on cryptography and its applications, trust management, human scale security, secure systems design, and networking and distributed computing. He is particularly interested in security technology with bearing on public policy issues, including cryptography policy (key escrow), wiretapping and surveillance, and the security of electronic voting systems. In 1994, he discovered a serious flaw in the US Government’s “Clipper” encryption system, which had been proposed as a mechanism for the public to encrypt their data in a way that would still allow access by law enforcement. He has edited several influential reports on encryption policy, including the 1998 study of “key escrow” systems that demonstrated that such systems are inherently less secure and more expensive than systems without such a feature. This work contributed to the recent shift in U.S. encryption policy. More recently, he has been active in the analysis of the FBI’s “Carnivore” Internet wiretap system. He has testified before various committees of the US Congress and European Parliament several times, providing technical perspective on the problems surrounding law enforcement and intelligence access to communications traffic and computer data.

Commander Charles S. Gramaglia *03
Cyber Planner, U.S. Cyber Command

Charles Gramaglia (MPP ’03) served in the U.S. Navy as a Naval Flight Officer and Intelligence Officer before transitioning to the Navy Reserve in 2002. In his civilian career, he has worked in intelligence and information operations and has an enduring interest in Military Information Support Operations (formerly Psychological Operations) and the creation of cognitive effects. He will soon complete a two-year recall to active duty at U.S. Cyber Command where he served as a Cyber Force Planner and Joint Exercise Planner. Charles serves as the Executive Officer of Navy Reserve/Special Operations Command North, and is a qualified Naval Flight Officer, Information Dominance Warfare Officer, static-line parachutist, and Joint Qualified Officer. Outside of work, Charles and his wife, Lesley, primarily function as chauffeurs for their daughters, Alex and Stephie, to various activities. He is also preparing (poorly) for his third marathon.

Paul Tiao *95
Partner, Hunton & Williams LLP, and Former Senior Cybersecurity Advisor, Federal Bureau of Investigation

Paul Tiao is a partner in the Washington office of Hunton & Williams LLP. His practice focuses on investigations, litigation, regulations, policy and legislation relating to a range of homeland security and privacy issues, including cyber intrusions, data breaches, intellectual property violations, criminal cases, electronic surveillance, FOIA and data privacy. Prior to joining Hunton, Paul served as Special Counsel and then Senior Counselor for Cybersecurity and Technology to the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In that position, he advised the FBI Director on operational, policy and legal issues, and represented the FBI in discussions with other agencies, the White House, Congress and industry. Prior to the FBI, Paul served as Judiciary Committee Counsel to the Assistant Majority Leader in the US Senate. He is a former Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Maryland. Paul teaches cybersecurity law and policy at George Washington University as an adjunct professor.
Dan S. Wallach *99
Professor, Department of Computer Science
Rice Scholar, James A. Baker III Institute for Public Policy, Rice University

Dan Wallach is a professor in the Department of Computer Science at Rice University in Houston, Texas, where he has been since graduating from Princeton. His research considers a variety of different computer security topics, ranging from web browsers and servers through electronic voting technologies and smartphones. He also works on technology policy issues with the Baker Institute of Public Policy, also at Rice. He is a member of the Air Force Science Advisory Board and also serves on the Board of Directors for the USENIX Association. In addition to blogging at freedom-to-tinker.com, he also occasionally writes for thetruthaboutcars.com.

Unlocking the Promise of Renewable Energy in an Era of Low Gas Prices: Technology, Regulation and Finance
McCosh Hall, Room 10

Moderator:
Lynn Loo *01
Theodora D. ’78 and William H. Walton III ’74 Professor in Engineering
Professor of Chemical and Biological Engineering
Associate Director for External Partnerships, Andlinger Center for Energy and the Environment

Lynn Loo is the Theodora D. ’78 & William H. Walton III ’74 Professor in Engineering in the Chemical and Biological Engineering Department. Her research emphasizes the structure development of complex materials for low-cost, lightweight and scalable plastic circuits and solar cells. With her recent stint at NewWorld Capital Group, a private equity firm that focuses on investments in environmental opportunities, Lynn’s research has expanded to include macro-energy-systems analysis and carbon balance for processes that generate liquid fuels. As the Associate Director of External Partnerships at the Andlinger Center for Energy and the Environment, Lynn leads the Princeton E-ffiliates Partnership that promotes teacher-student-practitioner interactions and fosters collaboration between the private sector and faculty on campus. She is a fellow of the American Physical Society and has been recognized as a Top 100 Young Innovator by MIT’s Technology Review, among other accolades.

Panelists:
Rick Duke *97 *02
Associate Director for Energy and Climate Change, the White House

Rick Duke works at the White House Council on Environmental Quality and Domestic Policy Council, where he has helped to craft and implement the Climate Action Plan announced by the President last June, including enhancing resilience to climate impacts, cutting carbon pollution, and catalyzing international progress on climate. During the first term, he served as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Climate Policy at the U.S. Department of Energy, including helping to launch the Clean Energy Ministerial and contributing to first-term policies such as the social cost of carbon, the mercury and air toxics standard, and the clean energy standard. Previously, he launched the Center for Market Innovation at NRDC. As an engagement manager at McKinsey & Company, his projects included managing development of the firm’s first global greenhouse gas abatement curve. He holds a Ph.D. from Princeton University, where his doctoral work focused on the economics of public investment in clean energy.
Anne Hoskins *86
Commissioner, Maryland Public Service Commission

Anne Hoskins was appointed to the Maryland Public Service Commission by Governor Martin O'Malley in August 2013. Prior to joining the Commission, Anne served as a Visiting Research Scholar at Princeton’s Andlinger Center on Energy and the Environment, conducting policy research on distributed generation and lecturing on energy and environmental issues. Anne previously worked in the areas of energy, environmental, and telecommunications policy and law at PSEG, Verizon and McCarter and English. Anne has also served in public policy and legal roles at the U.S. Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the New Jersey Governor’s Office, and at a Washington, D.C.-based policy organization. Anne earned a J.D. from Harvard Law School in 1994, an M.P.A. from the Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton in 1986, and a B.S. in Applied Economics from Cornell in 1984. She is admitted to practice law in Maryland, Washington, D.C., and New Jersey and lives with her family in Baltimore.

Michael A. Levi *02
*David M. Rubenstein Senior Fellow for Energy and the Environment
Director, Program on Energy Security and Climate Change, Council on Foreign Relations
Author, The Power Surge: Energy, Opportunity, and the Battle for America’s Future*

Michael Northrop ’81 *92
Program Director, Sustainable Development, Rockefeller Brothers Fund

Michael Northrop is the Program Director for the Sustainable Development grantmaking program at the Rockefeller Brothers Fund in New York City, where he focuses on energy and climate change. Northrop moonlights as a Lecturer at Yale University's Forestry and Environmental Studies School, where he teaches a course on environmental policy campaigns. Previously he was Executive Director of Ashoka, an international development organization that supports "public sector entrepreneurs"; and an Analyst at First Boston, an investment bank in New York City. Northrop also serves on Mayor Michael Bloomberg's PlaNYC Sustainability Advisory Board, on NYC’s Waterfront Advisory Board, and on the boards of directors of Oceana, a marine conservation organization, and Princeton in Asia. Northrop has an MPA from the Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton, where he was an English major as an undergraduate.
Chris Taylor *99
*Executive Director, West Coast Infrastructure Exchange
*Co-founder, Element Power

Chris Taylor is the Executive Director of the West Coast Infrastructure Exchange (WCX), a new multi-state organization founded by west coast Governors and Treasurers to address the looming infrastructure investment gap in the region. His career spans the public, private and non-profit sectors. Prior to joining WCX, Taylor spent 11 years in the renewable energy industry. Most recently, he was Chief Development Officer and a co-founder of Element Power, a global wind and solar energy firm. He has led the development of over 900 MW of wind and solar projects, representing over $1.5 billion of investment. He has represented the wind energy industry nationally and testified before the U.S. House and Senate and state legislatures on energy policy. Chris began his career with the Peace Corps in Cote d’Ivoire, after which he worked as Legislative Director for OSPIRG, an environmental NGO. Chris then came to the WWS, where he was the first recipient of the Stokes Prize. After WWS, he served as Solid Waste Program Manager for the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality. Chris graduated magna cum laude from Amherst College where he was also Phi Beta Kappa and a Truman Scholar.

Climate Risks and Preparation for Future Climate Events: A New York City Case Study
*McCosh Hall, Room 10

Moderator:
Guy Nordenson
Professor of Architecture

Guy Nordenson is a structural engineer in New York and professor of architecture and structural engineering at Princeton. His research project On the Water | Palisade Bay was published in 2010 by Hatje Cantz and was the inspiration for the 2010 MoMA workshop and exhibition “Rising Currents”. He is Commissioner of the New York City Public Design Commission and member of the NYC Panel on Climate Change. His research team at Princeton was recently awarded a major grant by the Rockefeller Foundation to develop “New Directions in Coastal Resilient Design Strategies” in collaboration with the Army Corps of Engineers. Nordenson was the structural engineer for the Museum of Modern Art expansion in New York, the Jubilee Church in Rome, the Simmons Residence Hall at MIT in Massachusetts, the Santa Fe Opera House, and over 100 other projects. Current projects include the expansion of the Kimbell Art Museum in Fort Worth and the National Museum of African American History and Culture in Washington, D.C.

Panelists:
Paul Lewis *92
Associate Professor of Architecture

Paul Lewis is a Principal at LTL Architects and is an Associate Professor at Princeton’s School of Architecture, focusing on integrated design and inventing new relationships between performance and form. His firm has completed academic and institutional projects throughout the United States, receiving a 2007 National Design Award and multiple AIA design awards. Their recent built work includes Arthouse, a contemporary art center in Austin, Texas; a residence hall for the deaf at Gallaudet University; and an administrative campus for the Claremont University Consortium. LTL’s work has been exhibited around the world, including the Venice Biennale, and their drawings are part of the permanent collections at MoMA, SFMoMA, and Carnegie Museum of Art. Their designs responding to global sea change were exhibited in Rising Currents at MoMA, and this year they worked with the NYC Department of Parks to redesign and rebuild Steeplechase Pier at Coney Island in the aftermath of Sandy.
Ning Lin *10
Assistant Professor of Civil and Environmental Engineering

Ning Lin is an assistant professor of Civil and Environmental Engineering at Princeton University. Professor Lin is interested in natural hazards and risk assessment. Her current research integrates science, engineering, and policy to study tropical cyclones and associated weather extremes, how they change with climate, and how their impact on society can be mitigated.

Christopher Little *10
Associate Research Scholar, Woodrow Wilson School and the Program in Science, Technology, and Environmental Policy

Dr. Christopher Little is a researcher in the Science, Technology, and Environmental Policy program in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton. His research interests include polar oceanography, ocean-ice sheet interaction, sea level change, and the characterization of uncertainty in climate projections. With collaborators at NOAA’s Geophysical Fluid Dynamics Laboratory, Chris uses numerical models to investigate the coupling between climate and ice sheets. His recent work at the Woodrow Wilson School focuses on developing transparent, updatable frameworks for projecting sea level change. As a technical team member of the New York City Panel on Climate Change’s recent risk assessment, he contributed to the innovative probabilistic framing of local climate projections. He is a contributing author of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change’s Special Report on Extreme Events and Disasters and the upcoming IPCC Fifth Assessment Report.

Enrique Ramirez *13
Postdoctoral Research Associate, School of Architecture

Enrique Ramirez is currently a Postdoctoral Research Associate affiliated with the Princeton University School of Architecture. As a historian and scholar who writes about the intersections of architecture, technology, and environment across different media, time periods, and geographies, his work has appeared in a number of scholarly, professional, and specialty architecture publications. Ramirez studied History of Science at Northwestern University (B.A. 1999), received his law degree from the George Washington University Law School (JD 1996), and has also studied film production at the University of Southern California’s School of Cinematic Arts and urban planning at the University of California, Los Angeles. He received a MED from the Yale School of Architecture in 2007 and finished his PhD in History and Theory of Architecture from Princeton University in 2013.
Driving Diversity in Higher Education
McCosh Hall, Room 28

Moderator:
Michele Minter
Vice Provost for Institutional Equity and Diversity

Michele Minter is vice provost for institutional equity and diversity, where she acts as Princeton’s chief diversity officer and oversees initiatives focused on diversity, inclusion and campus climate. In this capacity, she recently served as the secretary to the Trustee Ad Hoc Committee on Diversity, and the Trustee Ad Hoc Committee on College Access. Prior to becoming vice provost in 2011, Minter worked as vice president for development at the College Board, where she led fundraising and strategic initiatives focused on educational policy and college access. Until 2008, Minter served as director of development and campaign director at Princeton. A Yale graduate, Minter earned an M.F.A. in theater from Brooklyn College of the City University of New York.

Panelists:
Maitrayee Bhattacharyya *06
Associate Dean of the College for Diversity Programs, Brown University

Maitrayee Bhattacharyya is Associate Dean of the College for Diversity Programs at Brown University and Director of the Brown-Tougaloo Partnership. Maitrayee organizes advising, mentoring, and orientation programs for students of diverse backgrounds and launched Brown’s first seminar for faculty on advising best practices. Before becoming a dean, she was Acting Director of the Rhode Island Council for the Humanities, providing grants for programs that promote public understanding of the humanities. She traces her career in diversity and higher education to her freshman year as Ted Sizer’s advisee, her first job after college working with Ed Gordon on educational reform, and to graduate school faculty mentors, including Howard Taylor, Patricia Fernandez-Kelly, and Alejandro Portes. At Princeton, she also served on task forces convened to study the status of women and race on campus and was an instructor for the Freshman Summer Orientation Program. She received her Ph.D. in 2006.

Wesley Harris *68
Professor of Aeronautics & Astronautics
Former Associate Provost for Faculty Equity, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Currently, Wesley is the Charles Stark Draper Professor of Aeronautics and Astronautics, and Director of the Lean Sustainment Initiative at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Prior to this, he was the Associate Provost for Faculty Equity, MIT, 2008-2013, and served as Head of the Department of Aeronautics and Astronautics at MIT from 2003-2008. Before MIT, he served as Associate Administrator for Aeronautics responsible for all programs, facilities, and personnel in Aeronautics at NASA (1993-1995), and performed, from 1990 to 1993, as Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of the University of Tennessee Space Institute. From 1985 to 1990 he served as Dean of the School of Engineering and Professor of Mechanical Engineering at the University of Connecticut. And from 1972 to 1985, he held several faculty and administrative positions at MIT, including Professor of Aeronautics and Astronautics.
Andrea Morris *99
Assistant Dean for Academic Diversity, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, Columbia University

Andrea Morris began her new position as the Assistant Dean for Academic Diversity at Columbia University’s Graduate School of Arts and Sciences in August 2013. Prior to Columbia, Dr. Morris was a developmental neurobiologist and Associate Professor of Biology at Haverford College. She earned a Bachelor’s of Science degree from Haverford, and in 1999, became the first African American woman to receive a Ph.D. in the Molecular Biology Program at Princeton University, working with the late Dr. Malcolm Steinberg. In addition to her research and teaching interests, Dr. Morris is also a leader in the nation’s efforts to diversify academia and the scientific workforce, through her work in undergraduate science education and research training. Dr. Morris has won numerous grants from the National Institutes of Health throughout her career, and has mentored countless students, many of whom are from traditionally underrepresented groups in higher education.

Sekazi Mtingwa *76
Principal Partner, Triangle Science, Education and Economic Development, LLC

Sekazi Mtingwa was 13 years Professor and 4 years Chair of Physics at North Carolina A&T, a minority-serving institution (MSI). Later, he was Visiting Professor of Physics at MIT and Harvard and retired from MIT as Lead Physics Lecturer in Concourse, a freshman learning community. He was Faculty Director of Academic Programs in MIT’s Office of Minority Education. He is principal partner at Triangle Science, Education & Economic Development, LLC, providing consulting services to national labs, universities, and African governments. He is co-developer of the theory of intrabeam scattering, which sets performance limits on particle accelerators and is an advisor to the US nuclear energy R&D program. He is President of INCREASE, a consortium of MSIs working to increase their utilization of national labs, and co-founder of the African Laser Centre, a network of laser labs. Sekazi is co-founder of the National Society of Black Physicists and National Society of Hispanic Physicists.

---

Global Economic Downturn and Recovery
Robertson Hall, Dodds Auditorium

Moderator:
Alan Blinder ’67
Gordon S. Rentschler Memorial Professor of Economics and Public Affairs

Alan S. Blinder is the Gordon S. Rentschler Memorial professor of economics and public affairs at Princeton University. He also is vice chairman of the Promontory Interfinancial Network. He has been a member of the Princeton University faculty since 1971, taking time off from 1993 to 1996 for government service, where he served first as a member of President Bill Clinton’s original Council of Economic Advisers and then as vice chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. Mr. Blinder is the author or co-author of 20 books, including the textbook Economics: Principles and Policy with William Baumol, from which more than two and a half million college students have learned introductory economics. Mr. Blinder’s latest book, After the Music Stopped: The Financial Crisis, the Response, and the Work Ahead, was published in January 2013. He also is a regular columnist for The Wall Street Journal, and appears frequently on television and radio.
Panelists:

Linda Goldberg *88
Vice President, Financial Intermediation, Federal Reserve Bank of New York

Linda Goldberg is a Vice President of Financial Intermediation at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and a Research Associate of the NBER. Linda’s main research and policy interests are in international macroeconomics, on exchange rates and real economic activity, on the international role of the dollar, and on the consequences of global banking. Linda is the Director of the Center for Global Banking Studies at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, editor of Current Issues in Economics and Finance, Book Review Editor of the Journal of International Economics, on the editorial board of the Journal of Financial Intermediation, on the board of the AEA Committee on the Status of Women in the Economics Profession. Linda has a Ph.D. in Economics from Princeton University, and a B.A. in Mathematics and Economics from Queens College, City University of New York with Honors, where she graduated Phi Beta Kappa and Summa Cum Laude.

Edward Golding *82
Retired Senior Vice President, Freddie Mac, and Senior Advisor, Department of Housing and Urban Development

Edward L. Golding is a Senior Advisor at HUD. Prior to joining HUD, he was a Visiting Fellow at the Urban Institute. He is an expert on housing finance with over 25 years of experience in industry, government and academics. Prior to joining the Urban Institute, Golding spent 23 years at Freddie Mac in various senior roles including heading the Models, Mission & Research Division. Golding served as the company’s Program Executive for Making Home Affordable, the government program to prevent foreclosures in the housing market through loan modifications and refinancing. Before Freddie Mac, Golding had a number of positions in government and academia, including experience as a special assistant to the Board member at the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, an economist with the Federal Trade Commission and as an assistant professor at the University of Florida and the Wharton School.

Robert A. Johnson *86
Executive Director, Institute for New Economic Thinking

Robert Johnson serves as President of the Institute for New Economic Thinking and a Senior Fellow and Director of the Global Finance Project for the Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt Institute in New York. He recently served on the United Nations Commission of Experts on International Monetary Reform under the Chairmanship of Joseph Stiglitz. Previously, Johnson was a Managing Director at Soros Fund Management where he managed a global currency, bond and equity portfolio specializing in emerging markets. Prior to working at Soros Fund Management, he was a Managing Director of Bankers Trust Company managing a global currency fund. Johnson served as Chief Economist of the US Senate Banking Committee under the leadership of Chairman William Proxmire (D. Wisconsin). Before this, he was Senior Economist of the US Senate Budget Committee under the leadership of Chairman Pete Domenici (R. New Mexico).
Supporting Research in Uncertain Times

Architecture Building, Betts Auditorium

Moderator:
A.J. Stewart Smith *66
Vice President for Princeton Plasma Physics Lab

A high-energy particle physicist, Stewart Smith served as Princeton’s first Dean for Research from 2006 to 2013 and is now VP for the Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory. His recent research has centered on the BaBar experiment at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, where he had central roles in the observation of matter-antimatter asymmetries in the B-meson system, finally explaining the puzzling discovery of CP violation by Val Fitch and James Cronin in 1964, and confirming the theory of Cabibbo, Kobayashi and Maskawa, for which the latter two people received the 2008 Nobel Prize. Smith chaired the Princeton Physics Department from 1990-98, and the Division of Particles and Fields of the American Physical Society in 1991. He was awarded the 2011 W.K.H. Panofsky Prize from the APS for earlier work at Brookhaven Laboratory.

Panelists:
Elisha Smith Arrillaga *09
Fellow, William and Flora Hewlett Foundation

Elisha Smith Arrillaga is a Fellow in the Hewlett Foundation’s Effective Philanthropy Group. She is responsible for a portfolio of grants designed to help Hewlett grantees incorporate elements of the Foundation’s outcomes-focused approach into strategic planning and other activities. Additionally, she serves as a resource to staff on evaluation. Before joining the Foundation, Elisha worked at Mathematica Policy Research where she led data collection efforts on several program evaluations for government and private sector clients. She has also worked in the United States Office of Management and Budget, the National Center for Education Statistics, the Princeton University Community Based Learning Initiative, and Trenton High School. In her spare time, she enjoys running and volunteers with nonprofits in the Bay Area that focus on encouraging young women of color to pursue careers in science and technology.

Richard Obermann ’71 *77
Minority Staff Director, House Science Committee

Richard Obermann began his career doing systems engineering at the MITRE Corporation, then served as a Senior Program Officer at the Aeronautics and Space Engineering Board of the National Research Council, and currently is on the staff of the House Science, Space, and Technology Committee, serving as the Democratic Chief of Staff. The Committee has primary jurisdiction over a major share of the nation’s civil R&D activities, including such agencies as NASA, NSF, NIST, DOE, NOAA, and EPA. He is married with two children.
H. Vincent Poor *77
Dean, School of Engineering and Applied Science

Vince Poor is dean of Princeton’s School of Engineering and Applied Science and is also the Michael Henry Strater University Professor of Electrical Engineering. He was on the faculty at Illinois prior to joining the Princeton faculty in 1990, and he has held visiting positions at Harvard, Stanford, and other institutions. As dean since 2006, Vince is responsible for leadership of the School, which comprises six academic departments and multiple research centers, and involves more than 1/5 of Princeton’s graduate students and 2/5 of its research expenditures. His research interests lie primarily in wireless networking and related fields. A former Guggenheim Fellow, he is a member of the National Academy of Engineering and the National Academy of Sciences and has served as a principal investigator on more than 50 research grants. Vince lives in Princeton with his wife Connie; they have two daughters, one of whom is a graduate student in Princeton’s Department of Art and Archaeology.

Jean Tom *93
Director of Development Engineering, Bristol-Myers Squibb

Dr. Jean Tom is the Director of Development Engineering in Chemical Development in the R&D organization of Bristol-Myers Squibb. At BMS, Dr. Tom directs a group of chemical engineers focused on lab development, pilot plant scale-up and technology transfer to manufacturing of chemical synthesis for small molecule new drug candidates. Prior to joining BMS in 2006, Dr. Tom was at Merck Research Laboratories for 19 years where she held positions overseeing development projects, technology transfer, and pilot plant operations. Dr. Tom has had a role in ten pharmaceutical products currently marketed. Dr. Tom received her Ph.D. in Chemical Engineering at Princeton University in 1993 under the direction of Pablo Debenedetti. She holds B.S. degrees in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering and an M.S degree in Chemical Engineering Practice from MIT. She is active in AIChE, ACT, and CCR in the areas of new approaches for process development, crystallization technology and precompetitive collaboration.

Scott Zeger *82
Vice Provost for Research, Johns Hopkins University

Scott L. Zeger is Professor of Biostatistics at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health and served as Vice Provost for Research from 2007-2013. He served as interim provost in 2009 and chair of biostatistics from 1996 to 2007. As Vice Provost for Research, Dr. Zeger represented the university in all matters related to the research and scholarship of its faculty and students. Professor Zeger has been elected Member of the National Academy of Sciences’ Institute of Medicine, Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and of the American Statistical Association. He has served as expert witness to the U.S. Department of Justice and several states in their civil suits against the tobacco industry and as a member of the Board of Scientific Advisors for the Merck Research Laboratory.
The Role of the Humanities in Higher Education
Frist Campus Center, Room 302

Moderator:
Gideon Rosen *92
Stuart Professor of Philosophy
Chair of Council of the Humanities
Director of Program in Humanistic Studies
Director of Stewart Seminars in Religion
Director of Program in Linguistics

Gideon Rosen received his Ph.D. at Princeton in 1992 and taught briefly at the University of Michigan before joining the Princeton faculty in 1993. He works mainly in metaphysics, ethics and the philosophy of mathematics. For the past seven years he has served as chair of Princeton's Council of the Humanities and as director of a number of undergraduate programs, including the Program in Humanistic Studies and the Program in Linguistics.

Panelists:
Emily Bakemeier *02
Deputy Provost for the Arts and Humanities, Yale University

Emily Bakemeier is Deputy Provost for the Arts and Humanities at Yale University with primary responsibility for humanities departments and programs in the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, as well as for the Schools of Architecture, Art, Drama, Music, and Divinity, and also the Institute of Sacred Music. Bakemeier's academic area of expertise is in sixteenth- and seventeenth-century northern European art, particularly early modern French royal portraiture and iconography. She received her A.B. from Dartmouth College and her M.F.A. and Ph.D. from Princeton. She has been an active alumna of both institutions, serving currently on the Dartmouth Board of Trustees and having served an extended term on the APGA Governing Board.

Christia Mercer *89
Gustave M. Berne Professor of Philosophy, Columbia University

Christia Mercer is the Gustave M. Berne Professor of Philosophy at Columbia University and current chair of Literature Humanities, the year-long course in Columbia’s Core Curriculum that all first-year students take. Professor Mercer specializes in early modern philosophy, science, and theology and the history of Platonism. She has recently designed a book series, Oxford Philosophical Concepts, that enlists prominent international scholars to think creatively about the "lives" of concepts in the history of philosophy. There are currently 30 volumes in production. She has recently been a Guggenheim Fellow (2012-13) and, along Seamus Heaney, a Resident Scholar at the American Academy in Rome (Spring 2013). She won the 2008 Columbia College Great Teacher Award and the 2012 Mark van Doren Award, which annually recognizes a professor for her “commitment to undergraduate instruction, as well as for humanity, devotion to truth and inspiring leadership.”
Sara Ogger *00
Executive Director, New York Council for the Humanities

Sara Ogger is the Executive Director of the New York Council for the Humanities, the statewide partner of the National Endowment for the Humanities with offices in Manhattan. She joined the Council as grants officer in 2002 and assumed the directorship in 2007, serving also as Vice Chair of the board of the state councils' national federation. In a variety of public and broadcast appearances, Ms. Ogger has served as a voice for the public humanities. Earlier, Ms. Ogger was a visiting assistant professor of German at Montclair State University, and her Ph.D. is in Germanic Languages and Literatures. She lives with her husband, architect Jean-Gabriel Neukomm *93, in Lower Manhattan, where they are raising their two young sons.

Don Michael Randel ‘62 *67
President Emeritus, University of Chicago and The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation

Don Michael Randel is President Emeritus of The University of Chicago and of The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and is Chairman of the Board of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He was trained as a music historian at Princeton, where he earned his undergraduate and doctoral degrees. His scholarly interests include music of the Middle Ages and Renaissance in Spain and France as well as Latin American popular music and the songs of Cole Porter and his contemporaries. He is the editor of The Harvard Dictionary of Music, The Harvard Biographical Dictionary of Music, and The Harvard Concise Dictionary of Music and Musicians. He is a member of the board of the Carnegie Corporation of New York, Carnegie Hall, the Lyric Opera of Chicago, and CNA Financial. He has also served on the boards of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, the Argonne National Laboratory, and The Rockefeller University.

---

Luncheon
Tent behind Alexander Hall

Norman R. Augustine ’57 *59 H07
Retired Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Lockheed Martin Corporation

Norman R. Augustine, retired chairman & CEO of Lockheed Martin, has held positions in government, industry, academia, and the nonprofit sector. He has served as under secretary and acting secretary of the Army, chairman and CEO of Martin Marietta, and professor at Princeton University. He has been chairman of the National Academy of Engineering and was a 16-year member of the President’s Council of Advisors on Science and Technology. He chaired the Congressionally-mandated National Academies’ committee that produced the Gathering Storm report on education and competitiveness, and is a Regent of the University System of Maryland, a former trustee of MIT and Princeton, a trustee emeritus of Johns Hopkins, and holds 30 honorary degrees.
Richard Preston is a leading nonfiction writer and novelist, whose bestselling works reveal mysterious worlds of terror and beauty, and explore the lives of real people doing extraordinary things. Preston has written nine books, including The Hot Zone, The Demon in the Freezer, and The Wild Trees. Recently Preston completed the novel Micro, which was begun by author Michael Crichton and left unfinished at Crichton’s death in 2008. Preston’s books have been translated into more than 30 languages, and many of them have first appeared as articles in The New Yorker. He’s won numerous awards, including the American Institute of Physics writing prize, and he’s the only non-physician to win the Champion of Prevention award of the Centers for Disease Control. An asteroid has been named for him (Asteroid Preston travels on a chaotic orbit near Mars). He holds a doctorate in English from Princeton.

Career Connections: Roundtable Discussion

Fields Center (58 Prospect Avenue), Multipurpose Room

Moderators:

Kathleen Mannheimer
Senior Associate Director, Office of Career Services

Kathleen oversees career counseling, program development and delivery, and manages the Career Peer Advisor (CPA) program. She provides individual career counseling appointments for undergraduate, graduate students and alumni, and develops and implements programs, workshops, and career-related events for students. She also coordinates the IMAGINE Speaker Series.

Amy Pszczolkowski
Assistant Director, Graduate Student Career Counseling, Office of Career Services

Amy provides career counseling and programming for graduate students on all aspects of career planning for both the academic and non-academic searches. In addition, Amy conducts individual counseling for undergraduate students and alumni, and coordinates workshops, panels, and other career-related events for students.
Entrepreneurial Endeavors
McCosh Hall, Room 10

Moderator:
Lisa Drakeman *88
Chair, Volunteers in Medicine
Former Chief Executive Officer, Genmab

Lisa Drakeman’s career in the biotech industry led to four new treatments for unmet medical needs. She is the retired founding CEO of Genmab A/S, where she set a number of records, including the largest IPO by a European biotech company, and the largest global biotech licensing transaction. Under her leadership, Genmab received the Scrip Award for Biotech Company of the Year, and the James D. Watson Helix Award for best international biotechnology company. Dr. Drakeman received a Ph.D. from Princeton University, where she has taught, and now serves on advisory councils for the Graduate School and the James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions.

Panelists:
Carol Barash *89
Founder and Chief Executive Officer, Story to College

Founder of Story To College and author of Write Out Loud, Carol Barash has taught her Moments Method™ to over 10,000 students to win admission and scholarships at their top choice colleges. A graduate of Yale and Princeton, Carol has created award-winning educational programs that cross languages, cultures, and generations in diverse schools, businesses and communities. She was previously a professor of English and Women’s studies at the University of Michigan and Rutgers, Assistant Director of the Princeton Center for Electronic Texts in the Humanities, a humanities computing think tank; and Director of Business Development at Common Health, part of global marketing company WPP. Underlying all of Carol’s work is her undying belief and commitment that our shared future needs all students, from every background, to tell their story and pursue their biggest dreams. Her Princeton volunteer leadership includes Graduate Alumni AG Chair, Women in Leadership Steering Committee and APGA.

Don Drakeman *88
Venture Partner, Advent Venture Partners

Donald L. Drakeman is a Fellow in Health Management, University of Cambridge, and Venture Partner, Advent Venture Partners. He co-founded several biotech companies, and served as CEO of one of them for many years. For two decades, he was a Lecturer in Politics at Princeton, where he taught in the area of civil liberties, and where he has served as Advisory Council Chair for the James Madison Program, as co-chair of the Religion department’s Advisory Council, and as a member of the Graduate School Dean’s Leadership Council. He has written extensively on church-state issues, including Church, State, and Original Intent (Cambridge 2010) and Church and State in American History (Westview 2003), which he co-edited with former Graduate School Dean John F. Wilson. He has been a trustee of Drew University and the University of Charleston, and is a fellow of the Royal Historical Society and the Society of Biology. He holds an A.B. from Dartmouth, a J.D. from Columbia, and a Ph.D. in Religion from Princeton.
Annarie Lyles works on “greening” in not-for and for-profit sectors, aiming to promote vibrant living systems and bio-friendly technologies. Through her investing and consulting business, Bio-Gist Ventures, she helps entrepreneurs prevent pollution and disease, and improve natural capital, food security and energy efficiency. A complimentary passion is community-based initiatives for lower-impact living; she works with central New Jersey’s watershed association and Sustainable Princeton. At home, Annarie talks shop with Princeton EEB’s Andrew Dobson, parents two teens, and relishes woodland rambles with dogs. Prior experience includes biotechnology deal-making in the 2000s, when she negotiated and managed more than two dozen transactions. During the 1990s, she was an animal curator with the Wildlife Conservation Society (NYC) and advised endangered species breeding programs. During the 1980’s she enjoyed tropical adventures while studying biology.

Guanchun Wang *11
Senior Manager, Baidu
Co-Founder, jinwankansha.com

Arvid (Guanchun) Wang received his Ph.D. in Electrical Engineering from Princeton in 2011. He also holds a B.S. degree in Electrical Engineering from Shanghai Jiao Tong University. He was the co-founder and CEO of jinwankansha.com, a movie discovery engine based on tastes and friends. His start-up was acquired by Baidu last fall. Previously, he worked at McKinsey, Goldman Sachs and Lightspeed China Ventures.

Getting Involved: Regions, Reunions & More
McCosh Hall, Room 28

Moderator:
Daniel P. Lopresti *87
Former President, Association of Princeton Graduate Alumni (APGA)

Dan Lopresti received his B.A. from Dartmouth in 1982 and his Ph.D. in computer science from Princeton in 1987. After spending time on the faculty at Brown, he returned to the Princeton area to help found the Matsushita Information Technology Laboratory. He later moved to Bell Labs in Murray Hill. In 2003, Dan joined the faculty at Lehigh where he leads a research group examining fundamental algorithmic and systems-related questions in pattern recognition. In 2009, he became Chair of the Department of Computer Science and Engineering. Dan’s volunteer activities for Princeton have included service on the Governing Board of the Association of Princeton Graduate Alumni (1997-11, President 2006-08), the Alumni Council (1998-08), the Technology Advisory Committee (2001-present, Chair 2001-03), and the Committee to Nominate Alumni Trustees (2008-11, Chair 2010-11). Dan has served as a P-rade Marshal since 2003, and received the Alumni Council’s Award for Service to Princeton in 2005.
Panelists:

Donna Armentano *86
President, Princeton Association of New England (PANE)

Donna Armentano received a doctorate in Molecular Biology from Princeton and continued her career as a scientist with post-doctoral research at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, TX. She then moved to Boston to develop gene therapy for rare genetic diseases at Genzyme Corporation where she has been employed for the past 22 years. She holds the position of Sr. Scientific Director, Gene Therapy and leads research for a team of scientists that focus on developing platform technologies and applications towards diseases of unmet medical need. She is an active member of the Princeton Association of New England, has served on the Board of Directors and is currently the Association’s President. She is also an elected member of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Council.

Henk Gajentaan *64
Former President, Regional Princeton Alumni Association (PAA) Continental Europe Chapter

Henk Gajentaan joined the Netherlands Ministry of Foreign Affairs in late 1964 as part of the Policy Planning staff (Development Assistance). His diplomatic career included postings at the Netherlands UN Mission in New York (1972-1975 and 1984-1988), dealing with international development policies, and at the Embassy in Mexico. In 1990 he was appointed Ambassador in Dhaka (Bangladesh), and in 1994 he became director at the Ministry in The Hague. From 1998-2001 he was Ambassador to five Central American countries, posted in San José, Costa Rica. Outside of his professional life he was active in 1966 founding of the new political party Democraten '66 (D66) and was two years one of its locally elected representative at a municipality near The Hague. Since his retirement he has been active in The Netherlands alumni relations of his other alma mater (Utrecht University from which he holds a law degree). In 2008 he organized the Netherlands Princeton Alumni network of which he was president until 2013.

Larry Grippo *89
Reunions Chair, Association of Princeton Graduate Alumni (APGA)

Larry has been a Foreign Service Officer since 2005. He currently works as a trade policy analyst in the Economic Bureau of the State Department in Washington and covers issues related to U.S. - China bilateral trade. His previous posts were AIT, Taipei and Warsaw, Poland. From 1994 to 2005, Larry worked as a software developer and business analyst at Dillon Read and Company and then as a project manager at JP Morgan Chase. Previously, he also worked for Booz, Allen and Hamilton in Singapore and as a textile market analyst for the International Wool Secretariat in Hong Kong. Larry was born in the Bronx and grew up in New Jersey. In addition to his M.P.A. from Princeton, Larry has a B.A. in history from Yale College and an M.S. degree in computer science from NYU. Larry is the APGA reunions chair for 2014.

Diana Hill *10
Board Member, Association of Black Princeton Alumni (ABPA)

Diana M. Hill *10 began her career in corporate philanthropy before returning to academia. She is currently at Washington University in St. Louis where she is an Assistant Dean in the College of Arts & Sciences. In her role, she serves as a four-year academic advisor to undergraduates, directs multiple scholarship programs, and lectures in Psychology. Additionally, Dr. Hill is the Director for the Semester Online Consortium, a first-of-its-kind program offering rigorous, for-credit online courses from prestigious colleges and universities to top undergraduate students worldwide through a partnership with 2U. In her role as a liaison between the 8 consortium institutions and 2U she is responsible for operations and strategic planning. Beyond her professional life, Dr. Hill is a board member for the Association of Black Princeton Alumni.
Patrice Jean *99
Former Chair, Graduate Alumni Annual Giving (AG)

Patrice P. Jean, J.D., Ph.D. (Molecular Biology) is a patent attorney and Partner at Kenyon & Kenyon LLP in New York City, focusing on litigation that involves pharmaceutical, chemical, and biotechnology inventions. Patrice first became involved with Princeton in 2004 as an Annual Giving volunteer and is the immediate past volunteer chair of Graduate Alumni Annual Giving, breaking numerous dollar and participation records during her term as chair 2008-2013. She is a past APGA board member 2004-2012, a past APGA reunion chair 2005-2007, a life-time member of the ABPA, and a member of the Society of the Claw.

---

Princeton’s Libraries: Architectural Tour of Firestone Library
Tour departs from Library lobby.

Karin Trainer
University Librarian

Karin Trainer was named the University Librarian in 1996. She oversees a $56,000,000 library operation with 325 staff and 11 libraries, including Firestone, which is currently in the middle of a 12-year renovation project to bring it up to modern research, technology, sustainability, and safety standards. She is a member of the President’s Cabinet and a trustee of the Princeton University Press, among other campus activities. Earlier in her career, she served as the Associate University Librarian at Yale and the Director of Technical and Automated Services for the New York University Libraries.

---

Princeton’s Libraries: Architectural Tour of Lewis Library
Tour departs from Library lobby.

Ron McCoy *80
University Architect

Ron McCoy was appointed University Architect at Princeton University in August 2008. He provides overall guidance for the planning, architecture and landscape of the Princeton campus, including nearly 2 million square feet of current projects for new construction and major renovations. He has managed a career as a practicing architect, educator, and architectural advisor. At Arizona State University he was the Director of the School of Architecture and Professor. He was a partner in the firm of McCoy and Simon Architects from 1985 to 2008, and a senior architect in the firm of Venturi Scott Brown and Associates from 1980-1995. Mr. McCoy was elected to the AIA College of Fellows in 2007 and received the AIA Arizona Architects Medal in 2006. He received a B.S. in Architecture from the University of Southern California and a Master of Architecture from Princeton University.
Princeton University Art Museum Tours
Tour departs from Museum lobby.

James Steward
Director of the Art Museum and Lecturer with the rank of Professor in Art and Archaeology

Director James Steward came to Princeton in 2009 after serving as director of the University of Michigan Museum for eleven years. At Princeton, Steward also holds the position of Lecturer with the Rank of Professor in the department of Art and Archeology, and as a Fellow of Princeton’s Rockefeller College. His exhibition and publications credits cover a range of topics including ancient Greek pottery, eighteenth-century European art and culture, and modern and contemporary practice.

Bryan Just
Peter Jay Sharp, Class of 1952, Curator and Lecturer in the Art of the Ancient Americas

Bryan R. Just is the Peter Jay Sharp, Class of 1952, Curator and Lecturer of the Art of the Ancient Americas. Just received a B.A. in archaeological studies and the history of art from Yale University (1995) and an M.A. (1999) in art history and a Ph.D. (2006) in art history and linguistics, both from Tulane University. A specialist in ancient Maya art history, his recent publications include Dancing into Dreams: Maya Vases of the Ik’ Kingdom (in preparation, 2012); Printed Pictures of Maya Sculpture (in Past Presented: Archaeological Illustration in the Americas, in press, 2012); Mysteries of the Maize God (Record of the Princeton University Art Museum, 2009); Modifications of Ancient Maya Sculpture (in Res: Anthropology and Aesthetics, 2005); and In Extenso Almanacs in the Madrid Codex (in The Madrid Codex: New Approaches to Understanding an Ancient Maya Manuscript, 2004). He also contributed to the Princeton University Art Museum’s Handbook of the Collections (2007) and is currently involved in its revision (to be published 2012). Just served as in-house curator for the exhibition Gifts from the Ancestors: Ancient Ivories of Bering Strait, co-curated by William Fitzhugh and Julie Hollowell, presented at Princeton from October 2009 to January 2010. He is currently developing future exhibitions on Princeton’s collections of Southwest art and on the art of Peru’s Early Horizon. Just’s teaching at Princeton has included seminars on Maya, Olmec, and American Southwest art as well as introductory lecture courses on the art of Mesoamerica.

A Conversation on Chinese Arts and Culture
Architecture Building, Betts Auditorium

Featuring:
Peter R. Lighte *81,
Vice Chairman for China, J.P. Morgan Chase and Co.

Prior to Peter’s return to America in 2010, after an absence of almost three decades, he worked as a banker both in Asia and Europe. Two fortunate stints in Beijing - the book ends for those years abroad - provided him with an arching and invaluable perspective on matters Chinese which was moored in his Princeton education. Peter taught Asian history and philosophy at various colleges before becoming a banker. He is active in organizations centering on children, China and the arts. A writer, mosaicist and calligrapher, Peter is the partner of an English opera composer and the father of two daughters. They all live in Princeton, with Fuqi, their dog from Beijing, in the very house where Peter had been a cat sitter as a student.
Alfreda Johnson Murck *95
Independent Scholar

An independent scholar and curator of Chinese art, Alfreda Murck recently relocated to New York after living seventeen years in Beijing. In China, she was a consultant to the Palace Museum and a researcher at their Painting and Calligraphy Research Center. She taught graduate students at the Central Academy of Fine Arts and Peking University. From 2000 to 2013, she worked with the Luce Foundation on a series of workshops supporting the development of western art history as a discipline in China. Major exhibitions to which she contributed include The Three Emperors, 1662-1795 at the Royal Academy, London, an exhibition on the 18th century eccentric painter Luo Ping, and Mao’s Golden Mangos and the Cultural Revolution. She authored Poetry and Painting in Song China: The Subtle Art of Dissent (Harvard, 2000). In Beijing Freda formed collections of 20th century vernacular Chinese teapots now in the British Museum and of printed cottons now at Peabody Essex Museum.

Campus Sculpture Tour
Tour departs from the front steps of Nassau Hall.

Michael Hatch gs
Graduate Student, Art and Archaeology
Michael Hatch entered the Ph.D. program in Art and Archaeology at Princeton in 2008. He is currently writing his dissertation on Qian Du (1764-1844), a Chinese landscape painter with a penchant for fine tea and far-flung travels. His research focuses on Chinese painting from the early modern to contemporary periods, and his publications thus far include reviews of contemporary art exhibitions in China and America. Michael has been involved in undergrad life at Princeton as a Resident Graduate Student in both Rockefeller and Mathey Colleges, where he has led students gallery hopping in Chelsea and sculpture hunting right here on Princeton’s Campus. Before coming to Princeton, Michael spent three years living and working in Beijing, where he was a client relations officer at China’s most prestigious auction house. He has also spent time living in Sweden and New York. He is a 2003 graduate of Middlebury College, and comes from northern New England originally. On vacations he goes back there often to see family, trail run, and cross-country ski. Once finished with his Ph.D. he intends to either teach or curate.

Daniil Leiderman gs
Graduate Student, Art and Archaeology
Daniil Leiderman is working on his Ph.D. in the Department of Art & Archaeology. He is writing a dissertation about Russian underground art of the 1970s.
Career Connections: Guided Networking, Net Night Style – Creating the Right Ties to Drive Your Career Forward
Fields Center (58 Prospect Avenue), Multipurpose Room

Lee Dudka *77
President, Dudka and Associates

Lee Dudka, strategic advisor to tech + pharma, has served pharma since 1970. He’s been an NIH Fellow, psychotherapist (Rutgers Med School), consultant to Fortune 500s, worked on healthcare reform (HIEs) and advised a company launching an electronic medical record (EMR). Earlier, he taught at Princeton, Rutgers, and SUNY. After several requests to consult, he does it full time. He’s coached C-level and beyond (BMS, J&J, Pfizer) including hundreds of teams. He likes projects with impact: He led an Alumni Council team that launched Net Nights (8 cities), now morphed into Global Net Nights in 30 countries. He leads Washington, DC NNs (13 years; 7000+ guests) and taps a global network. In Arlington, VA, as Commissioner for travel soccer, he created a program (math, reading, soccer) for underserved students in 8 schools. A past President for the Princeton Club of Washington, he earned Princeton’s Service Award (2013). He's completing a book on networks.

Getting Involved: Alumni Schools Committee
McCosh Hall, Room 28

Moderators:
Terri Riendeau ’83
Senior Associate Dean, Admission

Terri Riendeau has been in the Office of Undergraduate Admission since 1988. In her role as Alumni Schools Committee liaison she works closely with the chairs and interviewers of the more than 250 schools committee around the US and the world.

Jennifer Daniels ’93
Vice Chair, Princeton Schools Committee (PSC)

Jennifer Daniels is currently Vice-Chair of the Princeton Schools Committee and a Vice-President of the Princeton Club of Philadelphia. She has served for the previous six years as Alumni Schools Committee Chair for Bucks County, PA and co-chair of the Philadelphia Alumni Schools Committee and recently completed her first term on the PSC. Jennifer has also just begun her second term as her Class Treasurer, having previously served as Reunions Finance Chair, Reunions Registration Chair, and Annual Giving Participation Co-Chair. After a career in strategy consulting, Jennifer is taking time to raise her children while volunteering in her local community on several non-profit boards. Jennifer majored in the Woodrow Wilson School and earned an M.B.A. from the Fuqua School of Business at Duke University in 1999. She is married to her husband Keith ’92, with two children, Stephen and Katie.
Panelists:

Narses Colmenares *80
Alumni Schools Committee (ASC) Chair, Princeton Alumni Association of Monmouth and Northeast Ocean Counties

Narses Colmenares was born in Venezuela, and earned a B.S.E. from the Universidad Metropolitana. He has taught at Universidad Simon Bolivar and served as Executive Director for Venezuelan Association of Electrical Electronic and Mechanical Engineers. Trained in Cryptography at Gretag AG in Regendorf Switzerland, he is an expert at handling complex projects with multiple dependencies and interfaces, such as: electronic detection of Trains for CSSA in Paris France; cellular systems design for RAM Broadcasting NJ; microwave data system for New York Power Authority and Hydro-Quebec, Canada; and wireless standards planning for AT&T Bell Laboratories and delivered Cellular systems to South and Central America cities. He has also completed exciting projects for IBM, Bellcore, Lucent Technologies, Combustion Engineering and the City of Newark, NJ. In 1994 received the Ellis Island Immigration Medal of Honor. Currently he builds IVRs for AT&T Labs at Middletown, NJ. In 1990 was the APGA Reunions Chairman, and in 2007 started volunteering as interviewer for applicants from local high schools in Middlesex, Ocean and mid-New Jersey Counties and representing Princeton at college fair. Finally, he chairs the interviewing efforts for candidates from Venezuela.

Isabel McGinty *82
Alumni Schools Committee (ASC) Interviewer
Former Chair, Princeton Area Alumni Association

Isabel McGinty studied Classics at Princeton and then went to law school. She served as an assistant counsel with the U.S. Senate Iran-Contra Committee, a public defender, and in private practice as a criminal defense attorney. Isabel is now an ethics attorney. Isabel began her volunteer work for Princeton as an Alumni Schools Committee interviewer. She presently chairs 2 ASCs, as well as serving as Vice Chair of the Alumnae Initiatives Committee of the Alumni Council. Isabel has chaired the Alumni Council Graduate Alumni Relations Committee. She is a past member of the APGA Board and its Committee on Reunions. She is a current member of the Alumni Council Princetoniana Committee and a volunteer with the Princeton Prize in Race Relations. Isabel is a longtime Annual Giving volunteer, a member of the Princeton Area Alumni Association (PA3), and a P-rade Marshal. Isabel received the Alumni Council Award for Service to Princeton in 2012.

Thomas Minton *08
Alumni Schools Committee (ASC) Interviewer, Princeton Club of Philadelphia

Thomas F. Minton, III, earned a Bachelor of Arts from Lycoming College in Williamsport, PA. He earned a Master of Science degree from Saint Joseph’s University and a Master of Public Policy degree from Princeton. He has been interviewing Princeton applicants since 2009. Minton heads the Governor’s Office of Homeland Security for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. He spent 22 years in the Federal Bureau of Investigation working on National Security matters. In 2001 he was selected to lead a significant portion of the investigation into the September 11, 2001 attacks on America. More recently he investigated the criminal cases against those held at Guantanamo Bay and served as the FBI’s representative to a number of National Security Staff-led work groups. He serves on the Penn State University Homeland Security Advisory Council, the Saint Joseph’s University Board of Visitors for the Center for Domestic Preparedness and Leadership and the Peirce College Advisory Committee.
Princeton University Art Museum Tours
Space is limited. Tour departs from Museum lobby.

Michael Padgett
Curator of Ancient Art, Art Museum

J. Michael Padgett joined the Art Museum in 1992. He has a B.A. from the University of Kentucky (1975), an M.A. from the University of Minnesota (1984), and a Ph.D. from Harvard University (1989). Before coming to Princeton he was a curatorial assistant at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts (1983–84) and the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston (1986–90) as well as curator of classical art at the Tampa Museum of Art (1990–92). His principal research interests are Greek art and archaeology, especially Attic vase-painting. He has organized several exhibitions of ancient art and has written and edited many books and articles, including City of Gold: The Archaeology of Polis Chrysochous (Princeton, 2012); The Centaur's Smile: The Human Animal in Early Greek Art (Princeton, 2003); Roman Sculpture in The Art Museum, Princeton University (Princeton, 2001); and Vase-Painting in Italy: Red Figure and Related Works in the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston (Boston, 1993). He is a lecturer in the Department of Art and Archaeology at Princeton University and, since 1996, has participated in the Princeton University Archaeological Expedition to Polis Chrysochous, Cyprus.

Betsy Rosasco
Research Curator of European Painting and Sculpture

Betsy Rosasco is an alumna of Smith College (B.A.) and New York University's Institute of Fine Arts, (M.A.; Ph.D.). After teaching for a year at Bryn Mawr College, she joined the Princeton University Art Museum in 1981. The Department of European Painting and Sculpture covers European art from the later Middle Ages to the modern period. Recent exhibitions in this area have included The Legacy of Homer: Four Centuries of Art from the École nationale supérieure des beaux-arts, Paris (2005); Mir Isskustva: Russia's Age of Elegance (2006); and A Painting in Context: Pietro da Cortona's Saint Martina Refuses to Adore the Idols (2007). Betsy's publications include The Sculptures of the Château of Marly during the Reign of Louis XIV (New York and London, 1986), and with Norman Muller and James Marrow, Herri met de Bles: Studies and Explorations of the World Landscape Tradition (Tournhout, 1998). Recent articles include The Mystical Crucifixion: A Dominican Picture and Christoffer Wilhelm Eckersberg's Ulysses Fleeing the Cave of Polyphemus: A Painting by a Danish Student of Jacques-Louis David in 1812, both in the Record of the Princeton University Art Museum (2003 and 2006 respectively), and Two French Royal Sculpture Gardens: The Orangerie of Versailles and Jardin Haut of Marly, in Studies in the History of Art (forthcoming).

Scotch Tasting with David N. Redman h*13
Former Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, The Graduate School
Chancellor Green, Rotunda

David Redman is the former associate dean for academic affairs in the Graduate School Office and its longest continuously serving administrator (to date). He served as interim Dean of the Graduate School during the 1993-4 academic year and that spring instituted the first Hooding Ceremony for graduate degree candidates. Educated at Williams College, Worcester College (Oxon.), and Yale University, Redman’s field of study was English Literature. Now retired, he serves as president of the Westminster Foundation (the Presbyterian ministry at Princeton University) Board of Trustees; is an Elder and Clerk of Session at First Presbyterian Church at Dutch Neck; and is learning to play the piano.
A Conversation with General David H. Petraeus *85 *87

Alexander Hall, Richardson Auditorium

Interviewer:
Michael E. O’Hanlon ’82 *91
Director of Research, Foreign Policy Studies Program, The Brookings Institution

Michael O’Hanlon is a senior fellow with the Center for 21st Century Security and Intelligence and director of research for the Foreign Policy program at the Brookings Institution, where he specializes in U.S. defense strategy, the use of military force, and American foreign policy. He is a visiting lecturer at Princeton University, an adjunct professor at Johns Hopkins University, and a member of the International Institute for Strategic Studies. O’Hanlon is a member of the External Advisory Board at the Central Intelligence Agency. His most recent book, Healing the Wounded Giant: Maintaining Military Preeminence while Cutting the Defense Budget, will be available on May 6, 2013.

General David H. Petraeus *85 *87

U.S. Army, Retired

General David H. Petraeus (U.S. Army, Retired) is the Chairman of the KKR Global Institute, a Visiting Professor of Public Policy at CUNY’s Macaulay Honors College, a Judge Widney Professor at the University of Southern California, and a member of the advisory boards of several veterans’ organizations. General Petraeus previously served 37 years in the U.S. military, including as commander of coalition forces in Iraq and Afghanistan, and as commander of the U.S. Central Command. Following retirement from the military in August 2011, he served for 14 months as the Director of the CIA. General Petraeus was born and raised in Cornwall-on-Hudson, New York. He was commissioned an infantry officer following graduation with distinction from the U.S. Military Academy in 1974. He was the General George C. Marshall Award winner as the top graduate of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College class of 1983, and subsequently earned MPA and Ph.D. degrees in international relations from Princeton University’s Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. He later taught international relations and economics as an assistant professor at the U.S. Military Academy and completed a fellowship at Georgetown University’s Institute for the Study of Diplomacy.

During his military career, General Petraeus served in Cold War Europe, the United States, Central America, Haiti, Bosnia, Kuwait, Iraq, and Afghanistan. In the decade that followed the 9/11 attacks, he was deployed for nearly 7 years, culminating his career with six straight commands, five of which were in combat. General Petraeus commanded the 101st Airborne Division during the fight to Baghdad in 2003 and throughout the first year in Iraq, during which the Division was noted for having achieved a unique degree of success through a comprehensive counterinsurgency approach.

He returned to Iraq in June 2004, having left only a few months earlier, to establish and lead both the Multi-National Security Transition Command-Iraq and the NATO Training Mission-Iraq, completing that tour in September 2005. General Petraeus is most widely known for his roles in the subsequent several years. On returning to the United States following his second tour in Iraq, he oversaw significant improvements in the U.S. Army’s preparation of leaders and units for deployment to Iraq and Afghanistan, including guiding the development of the Army/Marine Corps field manual on counterinsurgency. He then returned to Iraq to command the Surge and guide the implementation of the counterinsurgency manual’s concepts. During his 19-1/2-months at the helm of the Multi-National Force-Iraq, violence was reduced by 90%, Iraqi forces were reformed and expanded, and transition of tasks to Iraqi forces was commenced. After returning from Iraq in the fall of 2008, General Petraeus took command of the U.S. Central Command, overseeing the operations of all U.S. forces in the Middle East and Central and South Asia.
In early July 2010, General Petraeus deployed again, this time to command the NATO International Security Assistance Force and U.S. Forces in Afghanistan. During the subsequent year, the momentum of the Taliban was halted, development of the Afghan Security Forces was accelerated, and transition of tasks to Afghan forces was begun, all while preventing the reestablishment of the Al Qaeda sanctuaries in Afghanistan that existed when the 9/11 attacks were planned there.

Following retirement from the military, General Petraeus served as the Director of the CIA, leading the Agency during a period that saw significant achievements in the global counter-terrorism effort, initiation of a comprehensive strategic plan to guide the Agency, conduct of an effort to increase worldwide human intelligence coverage, establishment of the Agency’s Economic Security Center, and commencement of a number of initiatives to increase the Agency’s investments in its human capital.

General Petraeus has received numerous U.S. military, State Department, NATO, and United Nations awards and decorations. He also has been decorated by 12 foreign countries. He is married to the former Hollister Knowlton, who serves as an Assistant Director of the Consumer Financial Bureau. They have two children.