The Delfin II, a luxury 120 foot river barge, was first launched in March 2009. It has 14 air-conditioned cabins with large windows and private baths with hot-water showers. Four spacious Master Suites feature 180° panoramic windows and king sized beds; ten suites can be configured with two twin beds or one full sized bed. For larger parties, four suites can be interconnected and selected suites can accommodate one additional child in a roll-away bed. The ship features an elegant dining room where delicious local and international cuisine is served and prepared daily from fresh vegetables, fruits, fish and local produce. An expansive observation deck offers excellent wildlife viewing by day and unforgettable star-gazing by night. In addition there is a special hammock sun deck, entertainment center, library and bar.

AMAZON FAMILY VOYAGE
December 26, 2011 - January 2, 2012

Dear Princetonian:

This trip has been developed specifically for a family—youngsters with parents, grandparents, or other adult friends or relatives— who want to experience the natural world together. Princeton travelers will join those from the Harvard Museum of Natural History, so space is limited. Contact the Princeton Journeys team now at (609) 258-8686 or journeys@princeton.edu to reserve your family’s space.

The Delfin II, a luxury 120 foot river barge, was first launched in March 2009. It has 14 air-conditioned cabins and two decks with open space and covered decks for lounging, as well as a bar, library, and entertainment center. The elegance of the ship belies its simplicity. The food is excellent, with fresh ingredients, simple plating, and service that is attentive but unobtrusive.

Activities and meals are designed so that families may share the time and experiences together, but excursion options will cater to a variety of activity levels and interests. Swim with pink river dolphins, go fishing for piranhas, meet with local villagers in a riverside community, or just relax topside aboard the boat taking in the Amazonian scenery.

The Amazon is a place where history is still being made. It is still possible to make your own personal history in this land of great wildlife, breathtaking landscapes, and ancient traditions. The Amazon is also one of the most biologically diverse places on Earth. Travelers will appreciate the opportunity to see and hear the fascinating creatures of the forest. The insects are amazing, the birds are fabulous, and the flora is incredibly diverse. For nature lovers, this is a fantastic opportunity to experience the natural world together.

The trip begins by traveling to Iquitos and boarding the boat. From there we will travel upriver to the Amazon Eagle, a 120-foot barge that accommodates 28 guests in 14 cabins. The Amazon Eagle will anchor every night near the cities of Marañón, Nauta, and Iquitos. Excursions will include exploring the backwaters of Pacaya Samiria Reserve, the headwaters of the Amazon, and the Amazon’s rainforest. We will also visit the Pacaya Samiria National Reserve.

After beginning the Journey in bustling Lima, the group will fly to Iquitos to board the classically-styled riverboat, Delfin II. From there we will travel up the Amazon River, past the rainforest and backwaters of the Pacaya Samiria Reserve.

Dear Princetonian:

Among our most popular offerings are our Family Journeys and those trips that offer the opportunity for multiple generations to travel and learn together. The mighty Amazon provides a veritable educational playground for travelers of every age and we are happy to add this week-long program in Peru to the Princeton Journeys roster over the winter holiday break, December 26, 2011 – January 2, 2012.

After beginning the Journey in bustling Lima, the group will fly to Iquitos to board the classically-styled riverboat, Delfin II, in nearby Nauta. Follow the main channel of the Amazon River up from Peru’s lowlands to the secluded waterways of the Ucayali and Marañón Rivers—the headwaters of the Amazon. Retreat from modern civilization while journeying into largely untouched rainforest and backwaters of the Pacaya Samiria Reserve.

Activities and meals are designed so that families may share the time and experiences together, but excursion options will cater to a variety of activity levels and interests. Swim with pink river dolphins, go fishing for piranhas, meet with local villagers in a riverside community, or just relax topside aboard the boat taking in the Amazonian scenery.

Arrive U.S. and transfer for flights home.

Please Note: Itinerary may vary based on wildlife sightings, water levels and navigability. This itinerary aboard the Delfin II serves as an example of a typical experience.

MACHU PICCHU AT CHRISTMAS
OPTIONAL PRE-TRIP EXTENSION
December 21 – 26, 2011

This Christmas, discover the breathtaking Lost City of the Inca, Machu Picchu. After a morning flight from Lima to Cuzco, continue on to the beautiful Sacred Valley in Urubamba and the lovely town of Yucay. Visit a vibrant native market in the town of Pisac and Ollantaytambo, the only living Inca city. The following morning, embark on a dramatic train ride to the enchanting and mystical site of Machu Picchu to explore its granite temples, altars, squares, and fountains. Overnight at the Inkaterra Machu Picchu Hotel. Use free time to walk to the “Gate of the Sun” or climb the dramatic peak of Huayana Picchu. Before joining the Amazon program in Lima, spend two nights in Cuzco, the capital city of the Inca Empire, to experience its historic streets and landmarks, including the massive fortress of Sacsayhuamán and superb colonial architecture built upon thick pre-Colombian stonewalls. This five-night, six-day pre-tour extension (one night in Lima and four nights in the highlands) includes first-class accommodations; all excursions; five breakfasts, three lunches and three dinners; a folkloric show; air transportation Lima/Cuzco and Cuzco/Lima; airport taxes; airport-to-hotel transfers; and the services of a Peruvian guide. More information will be sent to confirmed participants.

Please note: departure from the U.S. may require a start to the trip on the evening of December 20.
WHAT TO EXPECT

This tour is designed exclusively for alumni and friends of Princeton University and members of the Harvard Museum of Natural History who are interested in the rich natural history and beauty of the Amazon and the fascinating history and folklore of the Peruvian rainforest. For the six-night cruise portion of this compelling voyage, participants will travel aboard the luxury river barge, Delfín II. This vessel combines well-appointed accommodations and personalized service with meticulous environmental sensitivity. Suites are air-conditioned with private baths and hot-water showers. The mean temperature in the Amazon reaches the mid 80s (°F) during the day and drops to 70° F at night. The temperature traveling on the rivers and tributaries of the Amazon is generally agreeable. In the Amazon rain is common throughout the entire year, but it usually occurs in the afternoon or evening, very rarely interfering with planned tour activities. This is a moderately active program. Activities aboard Delfín II include walks in the jungle and river excursions. Delfín II has a conscientious and personable crew and expert naturalist guides to accompany passengers on excursions. Travel on this tour is by motorcoach, regularly scheduled jet planes, train (on the optional extension), small excursion boats, and riverboat.

On the optional pre-trip option to Machu Picchu and the highlands, temperatures range from 30°-40° F at night to 60°-75° F during the day. In the Andes the group will spend several days at elevations from approximately 9,000 to 11,000 feet. The Machu Picchu extension has been designed to allow for an easier acclimatization when traveling to the Andean highlands by overnighting in the Urubamba Valley at approximately 8,000 feet. Continue to Machu Picchu at 7,600 feet, and finally visit the higher-lying Cuzco when you have had a chance to get acclimatized. There is some stair and step climbing at the ruins. Lima, the capital city of Peru, is at sea level.
