Bihn Quang Le *06

Regional Schools Committee Chair
Vietnam and Cambodia

Binh Le came to Princeton in 2005 on a Fulbright scholarship to study for a Master of Public Policy at the Woodrow Wilson School. Even before he arrived at Princeton, he knew what he wanted to do after receiving his degree. In 2007 he co-founded (and is now the director of) iSEE, the Institute for Studies of Society, Economy and Environment in Hanoi, Vietnam. iSEE “envision a prosperous, free, diverse, democratic, just and civilized society where minorities are treated equally.”

He still makes time for Princeton, however. When he learned that the goal of the Alumni Schools Committees (ASC) was to give all applicants a chance to interview with a Princeton alumnus/a, he immediately accepted the responsibility for his ASC, interviewing young and talented Vietnamese who were interested in Princeton. He is proud of the work that he and a fellow Woodrow Wilson School alumnus have done in interviewing all applicants from Vietnam and Cambodia since 2008.

Julie Dickerson ’10

Class Vice President

In the spring of 2010, when Julie Dickerson heard the job description for vice president of her class, her immediate response was, “I would love to do that!” She had two compelling reasons. (1) She saw the role as the person who makes sure that class events could happen around the country, and she loved organizing events. “It would be like what I did as an RA at Forbes, only at the next level.” And (2) she would have a “great excuse” to keep in close touch with her classmates and with the University.

She is now part of organizing one of the biggest events ever: the first Reunion for the Class of 2010. And she has an opportunity to combine her class role with her deep interest in participating in relief for Haiti, a cause she came to champion following a post-commencement volunteer stint painting murals in Haiti. The Class of 2010 will be sponsoring the Haiti Relief Lunch on Friday, May 27, from 12 noon to 2:00 p.m. at the Carl Fields Center. For a $10 donation, eat a delicious Haitian lunch. All proceeds will benefit health and education relief efforts in Haiti.
